Time for Joe to go?

Misspending allegations. Tuesday could bring formal call for Mayor Joe Fontana to step aside

ANGELA MULLINS
angela.mullins@metronews.ca

A methadone clinic in Old South. A massive development road map for southwest London. A new model for figuring out water and sewer rates.

All of those weighty issues, and then some, are on the agenda for Tuesday's council meeting.

But the story capturing headlines and airwaves is talk of a motion asking Mayor Joe Fontana to take a leave amid allegations he misspent about $20,000 in taxpayers' money.

Paul Hubert
METRO FILE

Therein lies the problem, Coun. Paul Hubert believes: Fontana's personal problems, which date back to his days as an MP, have become a distraction.

Nancy Branscombe
METRO FILE

"What needs to be front and centre is the well-being of the city of London," he said.

Fontana needs to either "step aside" as the RCMP investigates or "clarify" if he paid for a 2005 wedding reception for his son with government cheques, he said.

Tuesday will be Fontana's first council meeting since the allegations were made public on Oct. 19. He has hired a lawyer and isn't commenting on the investigation.

Fontana was quick to respond when asked on Monday if he would heed councillors' request that he step aside.

"Absolutely not. I am the mayor. I have been working really hard. I intend to work really hard," he said. "I'm not stepping down."

Coun. Nancy Branscombe said on Monday that she's considering putting a motion forth on the council floor asking that Fontana bow out. She planned to talk with him and other colleagues privately before making a final decision.

Others, meanwhile, are coming to the mayor's defence, saying there's no reason for him to stand down. He's innocent until proven guilty, several said, noting they've seen nothing but unwavering professionalism from Fontana over the past 11 days.

Bud Polhill
METRO FILE

"We're almost ready for the execution, and he hasn't even been tried yet," Coun. Bud Polhill, a Fontana supporter, said, noting voters haven't come to him with concerns about the mayor.

"If you're going to convict people before you have the evidence, before you even have the trial, I don't want to be any part of that."

Without "sworn affidavits" accusing Fontana of wrongdoing, colleagues should be standing by him, Coun. Stephen Orser said.

"It's a sneaky way to try to turn over the election result," he said about the possible Tuesday motion. "I find it less than honourable."

Vote is non-binding

Council has no power to oust mayor

If city councillors vote to ask Mayor Joe Fontana to take a leave of absence or resign, it will carry no weight. The Municipal Act doesn't allow for politicians to be removed based on a vote by their peers.

Should he decide to step down, it could have a massive impact on day-to-day business, Coun. Dale Henderson warns.

With Fontana in the majority of what has become a common practice of 8-7 council decisions, losing the one-man advantage could lead to tied votes and stalled action. ANGELA MULLINS/METRO

Londoners won't escape fury of the superstorm

Alert. Winds from Sandy were forecast to reach 90-100 km/h in London Monday night through this morning

JOHN MATISZ
john.matisz@metronews.ca

The wrath of Hurricane Sandy is expected to have reach London early Tuesday morning. And it should make locals wish the city wasn't dubbed the Forest City.

Wooden debris, among other things, should be an expected visual on London streets due to intense winds, says one expert.

"There could still be power outages Tuesday, and there will undoubtedly be branches broken and trees uprooted," said Peter Kimbell, a warning preparedness meteorologist for Environment Canada, on Monday afternoon.

Coming from the Caribbean, Sandy's appearance will blanket most of eastern North America. The New York City area, already drenched from massive rainfalls on Sunday and Monday, is one of its main places of impact. London, luckily, will only experience the storm's peripheral forces.

Regardless, the Upper Thames River Conservation Authority's Mark Helsten cautions Londoners to stay clear of ditches, streams, rivers and ponds over the next couple of days.

The senior water resources engineer says places near the Thames River may turn into temporary flooding zones. But at the same time, Helsten isn't panicking.

"We'll see elevated water levels, yes, and you might see some flooding in Harris Park, but that gets soaked several times a year anyways," he said.

"A month ago, you could have gotten 100 millimetres of rain and most of it would have soaked into the ground. You wouldn't have really seen any run-off. Now, with it being hurricane season, lots will run off."

Kimbell has an additional warning for locals.

He says people, particularly seniors and other vulnerable types, should avoid walking outside, as winds could reach dangerous speeds.

"It's moving a little faster than expected," Kimbell said of the massive hurricane. "This doesn't change much in terms of impact on southern Ontario, but the wind gusts should reach at least 90 km/h."

For more on Sandy, see pages 8 & 9

London's Tuesday forecast

- Temperature. Near 5 C
- Wind. Gusting as strong as 90-100 km/h
- Precipitation. Rain accumulation of about 20 mm

Water, sewer rate hike proposed

City councillors fielded a staff recommendation Monday that would hike water and sewer rates by a combined 7.4 per cent in 2013.

The increase would leave the average homeowner paying about $4.83 more each month — or $58 more a year. A public participation meeting to field comments is planned for 4 p.m. on Nov. 19. The target date for a final council vote is the next day. Overall, the proposed water and sewer budget is a 4.8 per cent increase over 2012.

The rate increase is needed to help chip away at a $450 million gap between available money and the cost of replacing infrastructure, administrators say.

People are expected to continue using less water next year, a long-term trend that's costing the city revenue. Costs, meanwhile, are increasing, including the price tag of water bought and pumped into London.

"A $58 hike is still a sizeable hike with tight (household) budgets" and "chronically high unemployment," Coun. Paul Van Meerbergen noted as the rate increase and proposed budget was tabled.

Officials have planned for annual rate increases similar to the 2013 proposal through 2018. A new rate structure for water and sewer — tabled Oct. 22 but not yet approved — could see annual rate increases level off to about three per cent by 2016 or 2017.

'Song and dance'

In other council news

Coun. Nancy Branscombe stormed out of Monday's meeting as politicians debated new committee assignments.

Mayor Joe Fontana and some others never intended to have a "serious" conversation about who should sit on the committees and who should lead them, Branscombe said. Rather, they were just "going through a song and dance," she said, referring to a suggested list of who should sit where put forward by Coun. Bud Polhill.

"That was clearly a political statement. They weren't being fair. I just think it's disgraceful," she said. "It's turning into a circus. The public should be ashamed of this council."

Fontana, speaking after the meeting, said the list was based on how councillors ranked committee selections on individual score sheets. Ninety per cent of people wound up where they wanted to be, he said. METRO

Keep an eye out for animals on roads: OPP

Middlesex County OPP are encouraging motorists to be on the lookout for wild animals near the roadways this fall. Collisions with animals have increased, as their natural food sources become less abundant and they search for food.

If you are involved in a collision with wildlife in an OPP-patrolled area, with no reported injuries, you are encouraged to move your vehicle off the roadway and call OPP at 1-888-310-1122. If you are injured, or your vehicle is damaged and broken down in an unsafe location, call 911.

All collisions in OPP-patrolled areas must be reported to police immediately. METRO

Lead Out Loud! Rally aims to empower youth

About 170 high school students and teachers will be empowered to Lead Out Loud! in their school communities at Tuesday's Youth Safe Schools Conference.

The conference will be held at the Education Centre (1250 Dundas Street E.) from 8:45 a.m. to noon. The theme of Tuesday's conference is Lead Out Loud, designed to empower youth to take on leadership roles in Safe School initiatives at their own schools. The keynote speaker is Miss Canada — Jaclyn Miles, who after being crowned in January, founded the Break The Silence campaign, which aims to prevent abuse through education and support for the victims.

"My platform is talking about abuse in many different forms," she said in a media interview in March. "I encourage all victims of abuse to break the silence, speak up and report it, which is half the battle."

Other speakers include Kevin Murphy, a gay men's HIV prevention worker at the HIV/AIDS Connection, and Caiti Barendregt-Brown, a public education co-ordinator from Sexual Assault Centre London. METRO

Can offensive help from D curb one-goal games?

Knights. Team has seven one-goal games this season, but lots of time to recover

JOHN MATISZ
john.matisz@metronews.ca

Coach says

"When you get to that age, everybody wants to play. We've got a lot of young guys, so we're trying to develop them, and he was the odd man out."

Knights bench boss Dale Hunter on releasing 19-year-old forward Jack Nevins last week.

It's not often a defending Ontario Hockey League champion team reflects on a 1-1-0-1 week with more optimism than pessimism.

At this point in time, though, the London Knights can afford to be a tad lenient — mainly because they've played less than a quarter of their schedule.

"There's always stuff you can improve on, but the work ethic is there and that's what you need to concentrate on," said Knights captain Scott Harrington, when asked to evaluate the team's decent 8-4-0-2 record.

London has participated in seven one-goal battles so far, which amounts to exactly half of its games played. The Western Conference's fifth-best squad has dropped four of them, including a pair via shootout.

Last year, the club ended up with a 13-7 record in one-goal games.

They were especially dominant in shootouts, finishing with a 5-1 record.

So what's the deal in 2012-13?

It's mighty early to be drawing definitive conclusions, but the sample size is big enough to ponder if the lack of success in tight contests is a byproduct of bad luck, or indicative of a larger problem.

It looks like it could be a mixture of the two.

Harrington and fellow rearguard Tyler Ferry believe the defence corps needs to chip in on offence more frequently.

"It's not just Olli Maatta or Harrington — it's me and Tommy Hughes. And even Kevin Raine and Nikita Zadorov," said overager Ferry, rhyming off the top three defensive pairings.

London Knights not saying much on CHLPA matters

While National Hockey League continues to spar with its players' association over a new collective bargaining agreement, its go-to development loop is butting heads with a fledging union of its own.

The Canadian Hockey League Players' Association, which hopes to represent those playing in the CHL's 60-team nationwide circuit, threatened to sue each and every member club late last week.

The CHLPA, which is being led by former NHLer George Laraque, has brought up two main arguments since going public this summer. It claims the league's education package is limiting, and that teams generally mistreat its players, who they believe act more as employees than amateur athletes.

When asked about the situation on Monday, London Knights co-owner Dale Hunter politely declined to comment. Overage defenceman Tyler Ferry did the same.

The only one to speak, captain Scott Harrington, offered a little insight.

"We haven't talked about it on our team much," said Harrington, a Pittsburgh Penguins prospect. "I received a call in the summer — and I think Tyler Ferry did, too — from one of the lead guys. They just kind of explained what their thinking was behind forming it, but we're just focused on our season." JOHN MATISZ/METRO

Halloween lights up retailers' eyes, too

Sweet deal. Trick-or-treat spending expected to top out at $1.5 billion this year

JESSICA SMITH
Metro in Toronto

Roughly $16.7 million worth of pumpkins were produced in Canada last year, according to Statistics Canada. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE FILE

There are almost 3.8 million kids of prime trick-or-treating age in Canada this year and families are spending enough on candy to give them all a killer sugar high, according to Statistics Canada.

Canadians are expected to spend $1.5 billion on Halloween-related purchases again this year, as they did in 2011, according to Consolidated Credit Counseling Services of Canada.

Candy, confectionery and snack food sales skyrocket every October, according to Statistics Canada, which publishes a list of Halloween statistics every year. Sales totaled $355.9 million in October 2011, almost $80 million higher than the average month of sales that year.

Even pumpkins play a significant role in the Canadian economy in the fall, with $16.7 million worth produced in Canada last year, according to Statistics Canada.

According to the Bank of Montreal, Halloween is helping Canadians boost retail spending higher this year than last.

"Retailers have enjoyed some growth despite a challenging economy and mixed signals from consumers throughout this year. We expect retail sales for the month of October to be up slightly more than 2 per cent from a year ago for a total of $39.5 billion," said Doug Porter, Deputy Chief Economist, BMO Capital Markets.

By the numbers

In a poll conducted in September, the Retail Council of Canada found Canadian households with children plan to spend an average of $75 on Halloween purchases this year.

$24

The study found people who live alone intend to spend an average of $24.

75-100%

Half of the people polled said they plan to spend 75 to 100 per cent of their budget on candy.

Popping on costumes of pop culture icons most popular way to celebrate

Masks of American presidents flew off the shelves of a popular Toronto costume shop this year — but prime minister masks are harder to find.

Malabar, a theatrical costume and dance shop, was so packed with costume hunters on the weekend before Halloween they hired security, which controlled a lineup that went out to the street.

Alana Sambey, a dancewear expert who becomes a Halloween costume expert every fall, said the store's elaborate masks are always popular.

"There's always political stuff, they want Obama or Bush — he's really popular — and (Bill) Clinton," she said. "They sold out pretty fast."

Customers often ask for Canadian politician masks — especially of Stephen Harper — but the store hasn't found a manufacturer that makes them, she said.

This year's most popular costumes are Catwoman and Bane from the Dark Night Rises, Sambey said. Superheroes of all kinds — from the current movies or timeless comics — are always popular, she said.

"People come in looking to be inspired," she said. "But I love when people are making their own costumes. When they say they're looking for this and this, and avoid buying a packaged costume, I love helping them out."

DON'T

Absolutely don't try any of these when it comes to your Halloween costume:

1. Be a racist. At the Campbellford Royal Canadian Legion hall in 2010, one man went as a Ku Klux Klan member and another went in blackface, wearing a noose. They won "best costume." The president of the legion, who was not at the event, later issued an apology.
2. Be a Nazi. In 2005, Prince Harry dressed up as a Nazi at a costume party. It's not any more appropriate at Halloween.

GETTY IMAGES FILE

3. Go naked. It's probably also a bad idea to "dress up" as Prince Harry in Vegas — at least if you plan on going out in public.
4. Be a perv. Some pre-made Halloween costumes are truly atrocious. "Dr. Howie Feltersnatch, gynecologist" may give you a giggle when you read his name tag — but not everyone's going to laugh.
5. Go in blackface. At a homecoming pep rally in Waverly, N.Y., this fall, three white students put on blackface and re-enacted Chris Brown beating Rihanna. Neither blackface nor domestic abuse make for great Halloween costumes.
6. Be a "Happy priest" or "Sexy nun." Package costumes for women that take religious figures and cultural stereotypes and make them "sexy" for women and add a fake erection for men are bound to offend.

Going out in Gangnam Style

Psy says he'll be dressing his best this Halloween because his fans from around the world will be dressing up as him.

The South Korean rapper of Gangnam Style fame, whose real name is Park Jae-sang, went on Reddit last week to answer questions from fans on everything from how he and his family are handling his speedy rise to global fame to what he'll be wearing on Oct. 31.

"I heard my costume is costume of the year, so this Halloween I gotta dress more classy, as classy as possible," he wrote, adding that South Korea doesn't celebrate Halloween.

Psy will be performing for the first time in Canada Tuesday night at the Kool Haus in Toronto, as part of a promotion for Samsung. The first 25 people at the door with a Galaxy device and the best five Psy impersonators will be let in, but all of the other tickets have been given away, according to the phone company.

If dressing up as Psy and the other characters from Gangnam Style proves to be as popular as the music video, there may be millions of Psy Oppa's out tomorrow night. Good thing there are a number of looks to chose from.

Playground/Beach Psy: You'll need: Pink shorts, white collared shirt, orange ascot or silk scarf, tortoiseshell sunglasses, and glass of cola to spit everywhere.

Psy in the stables: You'll need: A black suit or tux, black shirt, white bow tie, black shades, black and white oxfords, a talent for horse dancing.

Garbage Psy: You'll need: A blue blazer, black shades, black pants, white shirt, black bow tie and some friends who are willing to throw garbage at you.

Psy in the sauna: You'll need: A blue towel, black shades and little modesty.

Gangnam Girl: You'll need: A flowing white shirt, white socks and sandals, and sparkly shorts (or shorts, sequins and a glue gun).

Yelling at yoga butt Psy: Adventurous couples will need: Black suit jacket, black shades, black bow tie, khakis, a white sleeveless shirt and yoga gear.

Nong Chul and Psy in the elevator: To be comedian Nong Chul you'll need: Straw hat, lime green T-shirt and a hole punch, white shorts and some fabric pens, construction paper, glue and a necklace chain, black sandals.

To be Psy you'll need: A black suit, black bow tie, black shades and a healthy level of comfort with the friend who is going as Chul.

People walk down a flooded street as Sandy moves up the east coast on Monday in Atlantic City, N.J. The state's emergency

Welcome to Sandy land

Faster, stronger than expected. A Toronto woman was killed by flying debris as high winds whipped the city

Stripped of hurricane status but every bit as dangerous, the weather monster known as Sandy wheeled toward the New Jersey and Delaware coast Monday, putting the presidential campaign on hold and threatening to cripple Wall Street and the New York subway system with an epic surge of seawater.

In Toronto, police said a woman was killed by a falling sign as the storm approached the city. Winds were about 65 kilometres per hour in the area at the time.

Just before it was expected to blow ashore in the evening, the National Hurricane Center announced that it considered Sandy no longer a hurricane but a wintry hybrid known as a post-tropical storm.

The decision was technical and based on the storm's shape and its mix of cold and warm temperatures — a distinction that meant more to meteorologists than the 50 million people still in peril. The storm's top sustained winds weakened only slightly, to 37 km/h.

The storm knocked out electricity to more than 1.5 million people and figured to upend life for tens of millions more. It clobbered the boarded-up big cities of the Northeast corridor, from Washington and Baltimore to Philadelphia, New York and Boston, with stinging rain and gusts of more than 135 km/h.

Sandy, which killed 69 people in the Caribbean before making its way up the Atlantic, began to hook left at midday and was about 65 kilometres south of Atlantic City by evening, moving west-northwest at almost 50 km/h — faster than forecasters expected.

As it drew near, Sandy moved closer to converging with two cold-weather systems to form a fearsome superstorm of snow, rain and wind. Forecasters warned of six-metre waves bashing into the Chicago lakefront and 90 centimetres of snow in West Virginia.

From Washington to Boston, subways, buses, trains and schools were shut down across the region of more than 50 million people. Amtrak cancelled all train service across the Northeast through Tuesday, while the plans of travellers all over the world were disrupted.

Hundreds of thousands of people were under orders to move to higher ground. The storm knocked out electricity to more than one million people, and storm damage was projected at $10 billion to $20 billion, meaning it could prove to be one of the costliest natural disasters in U.S. history.

Vessel made in Canada

Captain still missing after crew abandons ship near N.C.

A Canadian-built replica 18th-century sailing vessel got caught in Hurricane Sandy's wrath and began taking on water Monday, forcing the crew into lifeboats in rough seas off the North Carolina coast.

The U.S. Coast Guard rescued 14 people by helicopter and spent much of the day searching for two missing crew members.

One of them, 42-year-old Claudene Christian, was found unresponsive in the water on Monday evening. She was taken to hospital while rescuers continued to search for the missing captain of the HMS Bounty, 63-year-old Robin Walbridge. Reports say she was later pronounced dead.

Both Christian and Wallbridge were wearing survival suits designed to help keep them afloat and protected from cold waters for up to 15 hours.

Earlier in the day, Coast Guard rescue swimmer Randy Haba helped pluck several crew members off a 7.6-metre rubber life raft.

He wrapped a strap around his body, and raised him to the chopper.

"It's one of the biggest seas I've ever been in. It was huge out there," Haba said.

The HMS Bounty — which was built at Smith and Ruhland Shipyard in Lunenburg, N.S. for the 1962 film "Mutiny on the Bounty" — had left Connecticut last week en route to Florida.

"They were staying in constant contact with the National Hurricane Center," said Tracie Simonin, the director of the HMS Bounty Organization. "They were trying to make it around the storm." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

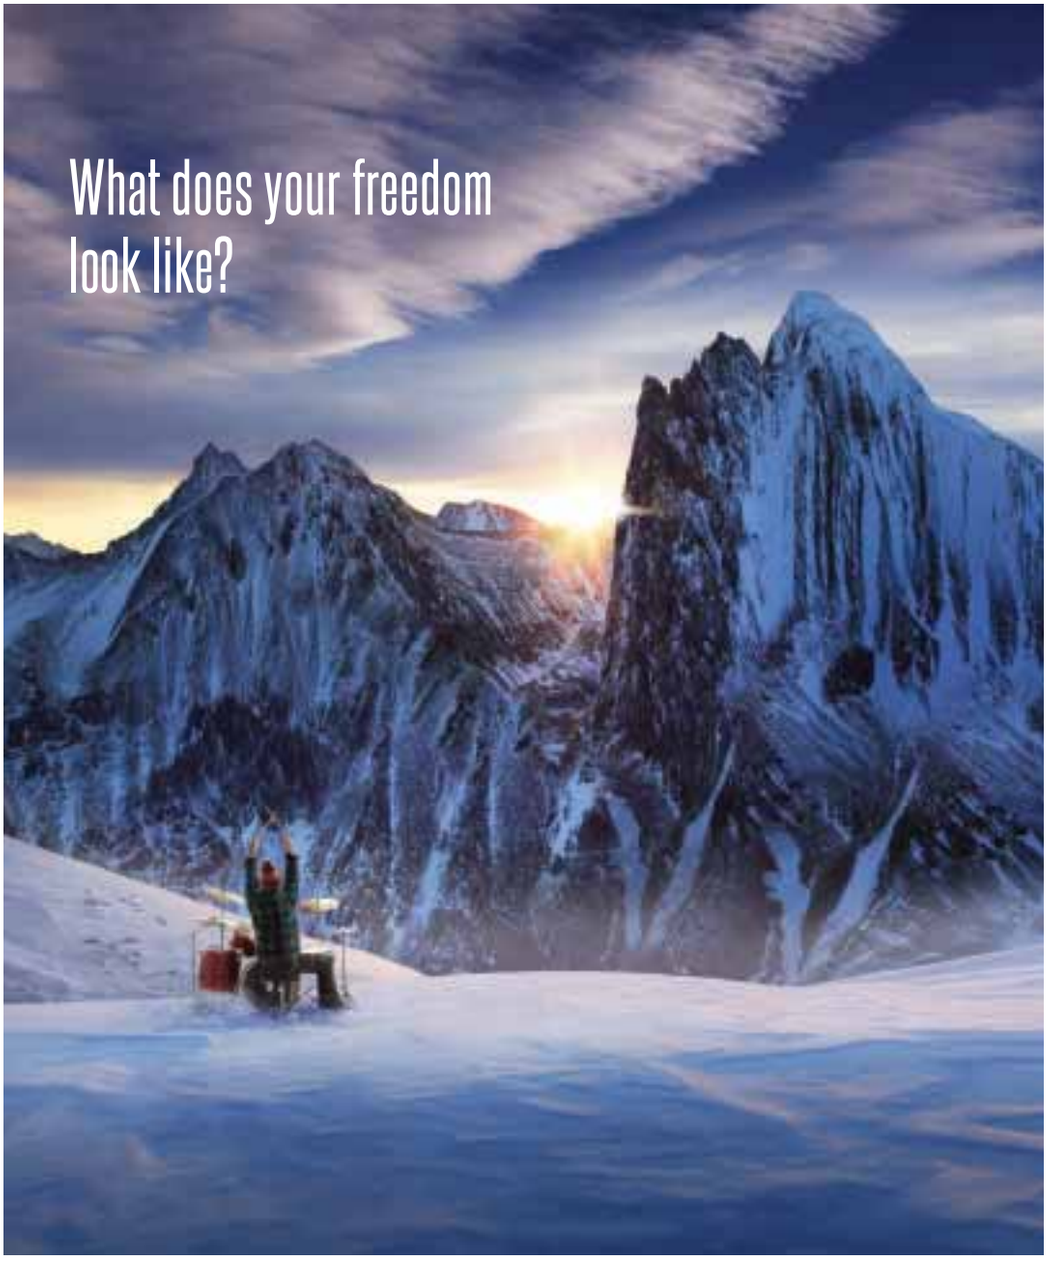
Survival kits — do you have one?

The Canadian Red Cross says remnants of Hurricane Sandy have potential to be the most widespread weather emergency since the ice storm of 1998.

- But the organization polled 1,000 Canadians and found 38 per cent of us do not have an emergency kit that could see us through 72 hours.



Sandy's economic forecast: plenty of short-term pain

Weathering the storm. Despite current havoc, hurricane's effect on overall growth will be offset by reconstruction

A woman carries bags back to her car after visiting a storm-proofed grocery store — which boarded its windows, but stayed open for business — on Monday in Sayville, N.Y., ahead of Hurricane Sandy. The superstorm assaulted the U.S. East Coast Monday, forcing the shutdown of mass transit, schools and financial markets, sending coastal residents fleeing, and threatening a dangerous mix of high winds and soaking rain. JASON DECROW/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Airlines cancelled thousands of flights and stranded travellers. Insurers braced for damages of up to $5 billion US. Retailers expected shrunken sales.

Hurricane Sandy is causing disruptions for companies, travellers and consumers. But for the overall economy, damage from the storm will likely be limited. And any economic growth lost to the storm in the short run will likely be restored once reconstruction begins, analysts say.

Preliminary estimates are that damage will range between $10 billion US and $20 billion US. That could top last year's Hurricane Irene, which cost $15.8 billion US.

If so, Hurricane Sandy would be among the 10 most costly hurricanes in U.S. history. But it would still be far below the worst — Hurricane Katrina, which cost $108 billion US and caused 1,200 deaths in 2005.

"Assuming the storm simply disrupts things for a few days and it doesn't do significant damage to infrastructure, then I don't think it will have a significant national impact," Mark Zandi, chief economist at Moody's Analytics, said Monday. The economic impact could be more severe if the storm damages a port or a major manufacturing facility such as an oil refinery, Zandi noted. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Storm surges into earnings season

A number of major U.S. companies postponed quarterly earnings reports scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, as Hurricane Sandy barrelled into the U.S. East Coast and caused the first unplanned shutdown of financial markets since Sept. 11, 2001.

The New York Stock Exchange, Nasdaq and CME Group in Chicago closed Monday. The last time the NYSE closed for a weather event was in 1985, when Hurricane Gloria hit the East Coast.

Budget officer. Slower growth could take $22B bite out of economy

Canada's budget watchdog says slower growth will sap about $22 billion annually from the country's economy.

Parliamentary Budget Officer Kevin Page says in a new report that he anticipates economic growth will brake to an annual rate of 1.6 per cent in the second half of this year, after slowing to 1.8 per cent in the first half.

He's not much more optimistic going forward, forecasting tepid growth rates of 1.5 per cent in 2013 and two per cent in 2014. That's at the bottom of most economic forecasts and well below the Bank of Canada's projections of growth rates of 2.2 per cent in 2012 and 2.3 and 2.4 per cent in the two years after that.

The PBO says the removal of government stimulus has robbed about one percentage point of growth from the economy. At the weaker levels, the PBO says Canada's nominal gross domestic product, from which Ottawa derives tax revenues, will be $22 billion lower annually. THE CANADIAN PRESS

ON CONTENTIOUS COMMAS AND THE IMPORTANCE OF GRAMMAR

SHE SAYS...
Jessica Napier
metronews.ca

I went to a party a few months ago with a number of friends including a fellow writer. In true nerdy English-loving fashion, we spent half of the night discussing our stance on a common grammatical debate: the serial comma. She was for, I was against; it got quite ugly.

Those who are passionate about punctuation will understand the dispute regarding whether or not a comma needs to precede the final item in a list.

Language 101

When you can have an entire conversation using emoticon characters — those adorable picture icons — is there really a place for your grandfather's dusty copy of The Elements of Style?

Consider these two phrases:

"My favourite colours are red, white and blue."

"My favourite colours are red, white, and blue."

Omitting the final comma in the series doesn't change the meaning at all, but I find the second sentence a little awkward to read and, ultimately, the serial comma (or "Oxford Comma" if you're a Vampire Weekend fan) is more of a stylistic issue than anything else. Interestingly, it may be a colonial issue as well; the British are far more likely to use the serial comma than their North American counterparts.

Are you bored yet?

Grammar lessons are something we all vaguely recall from our grade school days; chalkboards filled with dull rules about comma splicing and guidelines for capitalizing nouns. Many of these lessons have been forgotten in an age of auto-corrected predictive texting and Internet speak, TBTH.

When you can have an entire conversation using emoticon characters — those adorable picture icons — is there really a place for your grandfather's dusty copy of The Elements of Style?

There are still some folk who relish in grammatical nitpicking, but no one really likes those condescending know-it-alls who make a habit of correcting you when you use "who" instead of "whom" and roll their eyes at dangling modifiers.

But while it might be dry, learning how to use the correct linguistic tools and conventions can also be a very empowering thing. Grammar gives you the power to say the things you want to say the way you intend to say them.

Totalling 448 pages, The Canadian Press Stylebook is a little impractical to carry around with you, but online sites like Grammar Girl are excellent resources for the grammatically challenged. Writer Mignon Fogarty offers brief tips and answers questions about common grammatical mistakes or confusions such as the difference between affect and effect and when to use i.e. instead of e.g.

Grammar isn't sexy or exciting, but it can help transform passive sentences into active statements and give us more control over the way we communicate with one another.

Human feat

No headache for extreme balancer

This chap needs to be levelheaded to do this stunt.

British grandad John Evans balances a 90-kilogram cement mixer on his head at a charity show near the English city of Derby.

Evans, 65, first discovered his talent in the 1960s when, as a labourer, he would stack 24 bricks on a floorboard and balance it on his head as he climbed up and down ladders. METRO

'Strongest neck in the world'

The Guinness World Record holder from the town of Ilkeston, England, spoke to Metro.

How did you balance this hefty-looking thing?
First, a forklift hoists the mixer above my head. Then the lift lowers and places it on top of my head and I start walking backwards about three metres away from the forklift, while holding the plywood on top. Slowly I let go and balance it for a minimum of 10 seconds, before returning to the lift.

Have you had an accident before?
Never. Since I started this over 20 years ago, I have built up the bones and muscles in my neck. I have the strongest neck in the world — I don't think anyone else can do these extreme balancing acts.

The most difficult was balancing a Mini Cooper car, because if it were to fall I wouldn't have time to jump out of the way — the car would crush me!

So, no health scares?
Well, my neck has shrunk a bit! I weigh over 130 kilograms myself, diabetic and have one eye, so it's quite remarkable that I can do this sort of thing.

Balancing act

He must be headstrong

Twenty years after his first balancing act as a labourer, he started putting heavy objects on his head for entertainment.

Now, he has 33 Guinness World Records, has travelled the world showing off his talent, and has appeared on The Tonight Show with Jay Leno.

"No one else in the world can do what I do," he said while holding a homemade Tardis (phone booth) on his head during his most recent stunt. METRO

DVD review

Alfred Hitchcock: The Masterpiece Collection

Director. Alfred Hitchcock

Trying to figure out the logic behind any Alfred Hitchcock DVD boxed set can be as suspenseful as one of the master shocker's films. Alfred Hitchcock: The Masterpiece Collection isn't all that different from the similarly titled set released in 2005, except for two important things. It's now in the high-definition Blu-ray format, and it includes North by Northwest, curiously missing from the first release. These two things make this a masterpiece collection worthy of the name, even if we might lament the continuing MIA status of Notorious, Strangers on a Train and Dial M for Murder. This one does a solid job of canvassing a six-decade career that began with silence in the 1920s and continued through "the talkies" and technicolour, up to the studio system's demise in the 1970s. Three films are from the 1940s (Saboteur, Shadow of a Doubt, Rope), five from the '50s (Rear Window, The Trouble With Harry, The Man Who Knew Too Much, Vertigo, North by Northwest), five from the '60s (Psycho, The Birds, Marnie, Torn Curtain, Topaz) and two are from the '70s (Frenzy, Family Plot). Most of the man's best work is here, including Vertigo, recently voted the greatest film of all time by Sight & Sound's poll of critics.

Just For Laughs tour. Relationships tour has former SNL funnyman join up with a handful of other comedians for shows across Canada

scene@metronews.ca

Saturday Night Live alum Jim Breuer is among the comedians touring the country this month as part of Just For Laughs' relationship-based comedy tour. The tour, which runs through Nov. 25, also features John Heffron, Debra DiGiovanni, Tom Papa and Godfrey. Metro recently had the opportunity to chat with Breuer about marriage, rock 'n' roll and who is the biggest partier on the tour.

I'm looking at your official 8-x-10 and I can see that you're sporting some serious man cleavage. Now, is this the image of a family man with a wife and three daughters? You have a sexy, come hither kind of look in your eyes.
Yes, I kind of look a little buff — the "I think I'm still kind of cool and I want chicks to think I'm cool and hot" look. I don't think comics ever let that go. I think this was a year ago, a year and a half ago this picture was taken. I was in the best shape of my life and I think we were using the 8-x-10 for some TV or film we were trying to get.

What does your wife think of that picture? Does she approve?
My wife thinks that's a good picture. But I do have to take a new one where I'm in a suit. The other one that people used was this green corny shirt and I looked soft, I can't stand that picture. But with this one I wanted something a little more edgy, just a little "not sure what you're going to get from this guy"

Speaking of "edgy," how hard is it to reconcile your heavy metal comedy tour with your current relationship material?
Well, I usually open up with 10 minutes of being a heavy metal dad. And going to see concerts at my age, which is absolutely impossible. Now, what you just touched upon is that I did some heavy metal comedy last year as part of the Metallica thing in Germany — a couple of dates in the north east, and it confused audiences. Young people came and flipped out and lost it! Some people thought they were coming to see Jim Breuer just doing standup. So they were decked out for the night and wondering why they were there to see a rock concert. It made me realize I have to completely separate the two.

Sounds like you miss the rock n' roll stuff.
As soon as I'm done with the Canadian tour, I'm going to work for a New York show which is just a hard rock comedy show and we'll be on tour in 2013. We're in rock clubs and people clearly know you're not coming to sit down to watch a theatrical standup show.

You're touring on a relationship themed show with Deb DiGiovanni, Godfrey, and John Heffron. Which one of you is the wild one on the tour?
I'm married with three kids so that stuff is behind me. But I've gotta say it's Godfrey. That man is wild!

You were on SNL for four years in the late '90s. Who were your favourite co-stars on the cast?
I loved working with everyone, but if I had to pick one, I'd have to say Norm MacDonald.

Get your laughs...

The reports dogging Joe Simpson that he's recently come out of the closet to his family and has been carrying on an affair with a 21-year-old man appear to be effecting his golf game. According to Radar Online, Simpson didn't play with his usual partner at his weekly outing. "Everyone noticed that after reports surfaced that Joe was gay, he didn't play with his regular young, good-looking friend this past Saturday, but played with someone much, much older," a source tells the website. "Joe has always played golf at his swanky club MountainGate on Saturdays at 12:30 p.m. with a much younger, 20-something male, who isn't a member. Joe's golfing buddy is extremely good looking and Joe is very, very secretive about his identity. Joe never writes the guest's name on the sign-in sheet and never allows any other members to join in while they play golf, which is very, very odd."

Keeping your little ghosts and goblins safe this Halloween

Trick-or-treat. New apps allow you to keep tabs on your kids without looking over their shoulder as they gather goodies

DOROTHY ROBINSON
Metro World News

You'd never let your child go to a stranger's house unattended any other time of year, so why should Halloween be any different?

Nancy A. McBride, the national safety director for the Center for Missing & Exploited Children in the U.S., says children should be accompanied by a parent or trusted adult and walked to the door by the parent to receive treats.

"Know the neighbourhood in which you plan to trick-or-treat. Pick houses that you feel comfortable letting your child visit. Do not visit homes that are isolated or poorly lit," she says.

Make sure your child is able to see and move easily in his or her costume.

"Consider having your child carry a flashlight so that they can see more easily and are easily seen," she notes.

And even if your child is old enough to go out without your supervision, always make sure he or she is in a group.

If you're still nervous, there are several tracking apps that can provide an extra layer of security to keep track of your children via cellphone without being intrusive. The Snap Secure Geo-fence for Android sets a virtual boundary.

"If they stray from that perimeter, or don't return to a specified location within a certain period of time, it automatically sends you an email alert," says Jiren Parikh, CEO of Snap MyLife, the developer of the app.

Their other app is the Snap Secure Family Locator.

"(It) lets you check in on their exact location at any time, in real-time, by using your own mobile device or web dashboard," he notes.

Finally, keep in mind there are different ways to celebrate the holiday that don't involve going to strangers' houses.

"I'm a big fan of organizing a home or community party as an alternative to trick-or-treating," says McBride.

Stay safe

Not only do you have to get your kid a costume, but you also have to make sure it won't hurt them. Here is some advice from the ACEP, a national medical specialty society in the U.S. representing emergency medicine. The society wants to make sure your kid stays out of the emergency room this Halloween.

- Costumes. Avoid costumes that could cause children to trip, such as baggy pants, long hems, high heels and oversized shoes. Also, make sure they don't obstruct the child's sight or vision and they are made out of flame-resistant materials, such as nylon or polyester.
- Visible. Add reflective tape to costumes so your child is more visible to motor vehicles, and avoid dark colours. Check accessories such as swords, knives, wands and other pointed objects. Make sure they are made from flexible materials and have dulled edges on all sides.

More tips

Additional safety tips for Halloween

- Tip No.1. Be sure children do not approach any vehicle, occupied or not, and make sure they get away quickly if someone gets out of a vehicle and starts to approach them.
- Tip No.2. Children should never enter a home without their parent's permission.
- Tip No.3. Teach your child to say, "No!" or "This is not my mother/father!" in a very loud voice if someone tries to get him or her to go somewhere.

Your mother's health myths debunked

Research. Answering how to avoid catching colds and if the five second rule is actually a good standard

LINDA CLARKE
Metro World News

It's not like we'd ever want to argue with our grandmas or moms — but, really, does going outside with wet hair really give you a cold? Dr. Josh Kosowsky, who co-authored When Doctors Don't Listen, did some research and came up with answers for us.

Going outside with a wet head gives you a cold
"I want to believe this because experientially it feels like it's true. But it turns out it's not. Short periods of being outside with wet hair or scalp won't give you a cold."

Indoor tanning boosts your vitamin D
"Exposure to sunlight does promote vitamin D, but is ultraviolet light in a tanning bed the same thing? The risk of skin cancer from using them makes it a bad idea."

Eating carrots improves your vision and turns your skin orange
"Both of these are true. That doesn't mean eating a bushel of carrots every day gives you X-ray vision and you'd need to eat ridiculous amounts to turn orange. But carrots do contain beta-carotene, which the body turns into vitamin A, which is necessary for healthy vision."

Standing by a microwave gives you cancer:
"This one has been pretty much debunked. The likelihood of radiation leaking from a microwave oven is trivial."

Cracking your knuckles gives you arthritis
"I tell my kids this all the time simply because it's really annoying! But there's no known correlation."

Carrots are proven to improve your vision. ISTOCK PHOTOS

Food dropped on the floor is OK to eat before five seconds pass
"You don't need to be a doctor to work that out. There's nothing legitimate about it. But much of what we eat is contaminated by bacteria. Our hands have bacteria. Our stomach acid kills most bacteria."

Tender chicken mingles with rice noodles & sesame sauce

for more, visit
rosereisman.com

This stir-fry is outstanding with rice noodles, but it's also good over rice, couscous or linguini.

Chicken thighs are more tender and flavourful than the breast, but you can use either. Dipping the chicken in the soy and cornstarch mixture keeps it very moist.

1. For the chicken, place the diced chicken, soy sauce and cornstarch in a bowl; stir until well combined. Add oil to a non-stick wok and place over medium heat. Sauté the chicken for 4 minutes, until almost cooked. Remove from the pan and set aside. Wipe out the pan.

2. For the sauce, combine the stock, vinegar, soy sauce, sugar, molasses, cornstarch, sesame oil and chili paste in a small bowl; stir until well combined.

3. Cook the noodles in boiling water for 2 minutes or just until tender. Drain and set aside.

Ingredients

Chicken
- 1 lb boneless, skinless chicken thighs, diced
- 1 tbsp low-sodium soy sauce
- 1 tbsp cornstarch
- 2 tsp vegetable oil

Sauce
- 1/2 cup chicken stock
- 2 tbsp rice vinegar
- 3 tbsp low-sodium soy sauce
- 2 tbsp brown sugar
- 2 tbsp molasses
- 1 tbsp cornstarch
- 2 tsp sesame oil
- 1 tsp hot chili paste

Base
- 6 oz medium rice noodles
- 1 1/2 cups thinly sliced red bell pepper
- 1 1/2 cups thinly sliced snow or sugar snap peas
- 1/3 cup chopped cilantro
- 2 tsp sesame seeds, toasted
- fresh bean sprouts

4. Respray the wok with cooking oil and place over medium heat. When hot, add the bell peppers and peas. Sauté for 2 minutes, then stir in the sauce and chicken. Cook, stirring, for about 1 minute, until the sauce has thickened. Add the rice noodles and heat thoroughly, about 2 minutes. Serve on a large platter garnished with cilantro or parsley and sesame seeds. Scatter bean sprouts over top. ROSE REISMAN'S COMPLETE LIGHT KITCHEN (WHITECAP BOOKS)

Protein punch

NUTRI-BITES

Are you getting enough protein? On average, adult women need about 46 grams and men need about 56 grams. (This average changes with your age, gender, size and activity level or nursing and pregnancy status.)

More isn't always better since your body can only make use of the exact amount it needs, and any extra can put a strain on your kidneys.

North Americans tend to get enough, so the burning question is: Do we get enough of the right source?

Here are protein sources and amounts. Choose more from the leaner end at the top of this list, as they tend to offer added health benefits and few downsides.

- 5 oz/30 g fish (mostly good fats)
- 1/2 cup/7 g beans (great for fibre)
- 1/2 cup/8.5 g edamame (soy beans)
- 2 tbsp/4 g almond butter (good fats and fibre)
- 3 oz/6 g extra firm tofu
- 2 oz/14 g cheddar cheese (but it contains 220 calories and 18 g fat)
- 5 oz/40-60 g of meat, chicken or pork (watch for saturated fat and cholesterol)

Most experts agree that it is better to vary the source and spread the yummy throughout the day rather than obtaining a big meaty wallop all in one go. 2. Wipe frying pan clean with paper towel. Heat remaining 5 ml (1 tsp) oil over medium heat; add chicken strips and cook for 1 minute, stirring, until hot. Sprinkle with lime juice. Transfer to a small serving bowl.

3. Place cheese in a bowl. Arrange tortillas on a platter. Let family members make their own fajitas. Serve garnished with lime wedges, if desired. THE CANADIAN PRESS/PRESIDENT'S CHOICE

Gingersnap cookies steal spotlight in succulent sauce

Marinating chicken in a seasoned brine guarantees tender results. Inspired by traditional sauerbraten, the sauce for this recipe features carrots, onions and garlic. An unusual touch is the addition of crushed gingersnap cookies to thicken. Serve this dish with herbed fluffy mashed potatoes.

Ingredients

- 1.25 kg (2 1/2 lb) skinless bone-in chicken drumsticks and thighs (9 or 10 pieces)

Brine
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) fancy molasses
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) liquid honey
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) each chopped fresh sage and thyme leaves
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) coarse sea salt
- 1 ml (1/4 tsp) pepper

Sauce
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) vegetable oil
- 1 large onion, finely diced
- 4 medium carrots, peeled and thinly sliced
- 2 cloves garlic, finely minced
- 375 ml (1 1/2 cups) sodium-reduced chicken broth
- 75 ml (1/3 cup) gingersnap cookie crumbs
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) apple cider vinegar
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) each chopped fresh sage and fresh thyme leaves
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) pepper

This recipes serves four to six. THE CANADIAN PRESS/HANDOUT

1. Brine: Fit large resealable plastic bag in a large bowl. In separate bowl, combine molasses, honey, sage, thyme, salt, pepper and 500 ml (2 cups) cold water; pour into bag. Add chicken; seal and refrigerate for a minimum of 2 hours or up to 12 hours.

2. Discard brine; pat chicken dry with paper towel, leaving any chopped herbs clinging to chicken.

3. Sauce: In heavy-bottomed, non-stick skillet, heat oil over medium heat; brown chicken on all sides, 5 minutes. Remove chicken to plate.

4. Add onion, carrots and garlic to pan, scraping up any browned bits. Cook, stirring often, for 3 minutes or until softened and veg start to brown.

5. Add chicken broth, gingersnap crumbs and vinegar, stirring to combine. Return chicken and any accumulated juices to pan. Mix in sage and thyme. Cover, reduce heat and simmer for about 15 minutes or until juices run clear when chicken is pierced. Season with pepper or to taste. THE CANADIAN PRESS/FOODLAND ONTARIO

Ticking time bomb

How late is too late for dinner?

Charles, when a house guest (who has had the same amount of time as all the other ladies and her own private bathroom) just takes endless time to dress and come downstairs for dinner (9:15 p.m. for an 8 p.m. dinner), just how long is dinner to be held up? Her husband and other guests were fuming and I am wondering if I should have just "rung dat bell" and announced dinner. How long should one guest be allowed to hold up the rest of the guests?

CHARLES THE BUTLER
askcharlesthebutler@metronews.ca
For more, visit charlesmacpherson.com

It is rude for any guest to hold up an evening and there is a difference between being fashionably late and just plain rude. In this case the guest was rude. As the host, I would have personally gone upstairs or sent her husband and said that I was unable to hold dinner past 8:30 p.m., and if she was unable to join us downstairs, then we would miss her, but look forward to her joining us when she was able. There is no excuse that I can see to hold up the remaining guests who were all on time. Once the late guest joined the dinner party, I would have then served her main course, but forgone the appetizer to speed things up.

On a lighter note I'm proud to announce that The Charles MacPherson Academy was awarded the prestigious Educator of the Year Award!

Other guests left waiting to eat are likely to be livid. ISTOCK

Sweet Movember – A charity booster and the reason I met my husband

More than just silly lip hair. Moustache month raises millions worldwide for men's health, but it also introduced me to the love of my life

KRISTEN THOMPSON
kristen.thompson@metronews.ca

Kristen Thompson and husband Dylan showing off their 'staches on their wedding day. JENNIFER MOHER PHOTOGRAPHY

This time every year, I cringe as my husband waffles between growing friendly muttonchops or a pushbroom for Movember.

But I have to remind myself that growing a prickly 'stache is saving and changing lives. And in my case, bringing people together.

In 2007, I hadn't even heard of the Movember campaign — which raises money and awareness for men's health — and I was tasked with writing a story about this quirky fundraiser's first official year in Canada.

A colleague happened to have a friend taking part in Movember, so he passed along his name and contact and I called him up.

That brief interview sparked a friendship that turned into a romance that, four years and four Movembers later, led us down the aisle.

We didn't forget the importance of Movember at our wedding this year, writing a "how we met" story in our wedding program that begins: "It all started with a hairy upper lip."

Wedding guests were also given moustaches on sticks for photo hilarity.

Quote

"It all started with a hairy upper lip."

Since we met, Movember has grown into an international movement that's had nearly two million participants in dozens of countries around the world.

Last year alone, Mo Bros and Mo Sistas raised $125.7 million for the cause, and helped bring greater awareness to male participants about the health risks they face.

I admit it, I could do without a month of bristly kisses. I prefer seeing the Tom Selleck ON Tom Selleck. But really, it's worth it when I think about the fact that I only have to live through a month with his moustache, but get a lifetime with Dylan.

The facts

Movember started in Melbourne, Australia in 2003 with 30 participants.

North American launch. The campaign officially got going in Canada, the U.S. and the U.K. in 2007.

What it has become. In 2011, more than 854,000 people in 14 countries took part in the campaign, where it officially obtained charity status in Canada. Last year alone it raised $125 million and helped bring awareness about men's health risks

Don't let your teen get caught in a stock market downdraft

Alison on Money. It's RESP reorganization time

YOUR MONEY
Alison Griffiths
money@metronews.ca

If you have a teen with an RESP and a post-secondary goal, the last thing you want is for tuition time to arrive just as the college account sinks by 30 or 40 per cent.

That's exactly what happened to many parents in 2008 and 2009 when the financial crisis hit and equity-heavy RESPs were slammed.

With tremendous uncertainty in world markets and many RESP portfolios performing poorly, there's never been a better time to re-organize those post-secondary savings.

The basic rule is this: Once a child reaches 13, all new RESP contributions should be put into cash investments — basically high interest savings or short-term GICs. Forget money market mutual funds as fees eat up any return.

Next, start selling 10 to 20 per cent of existing stock market investments — usually equity mutual funds or exchange-traded funds (ETFs). Do this annually or, if your trading fees are low — $6.95 to $9.95 — you can sell investments three or four times a year to reach that 10 to 20 per cent.

With many RESP portfolios performing poorly, now is a good time to re-organize post-secondary savings. ISTOCK IMAGES

If the RESP is at a discount brokerage, there may be no trading fee to sell units of the bank's own mutual funds, but there may be for funds offered by other providers. Also, if you have been convinced to buy mutual funds with deferred sales charges (DSC), then there may be sales commissions to pay on units sold within six years of purchase.

Heads up for parents of younger children! Don't buy mutual funds with DSC fees attached. There are plenty of no-load funds out there that won't cost you anything to sell beyond, possibly, a trading fee.

If you follow my plan, by the time your teen is ready to head off to post-secondary studies, most of the investments will be in cash. Yes, you might miss out on a big stock market run-up.

However, it is far better to forfeit some gains than to be forced to rely on a line of credit to pay tuition because the RESP portfolio, still loaded up with equities, is in the tank.

What happened to your nest-egg goal?

FUN AND FRUGAL
Lesley Scorgie
money@metronews.ca

Are you looking back at your 2012 financial goals with a guilt-ridden pain in your stomach? Don't fret. If you want to end 2012 with a plan to really kick-start your net worth growth, read on.

To grow your bottom line, you must reduce debt and build assets.

Step 1
Know where you stand financially so that you can create a plan to grow your bottom line.

When you get home tonight, download your favourite net worth tracking tool to determine what you own and owe.

All major banks have free online calculators, but if you want to build your own, simply total up your assets and subtract your liabilities.

If you get lost, go through your stack of mail and pull out all your financial statements.

Step 2
This week, set a realistic net worth goal for the remainder of 2012, 2013 and 2014.

For example, if your current bottom line is negative $1,000, grow it to $500 by year-end, and aim to have $10,000 by 2014.

Step 3
If you don't start tracking your money, you'll lose it, so develop a budget this week.

According to author Dr. Thomas Stanley, the majority of self-made multi-millionaires keep meticulous budgets, even though they're rolling in dough. A terrific budgeting website is Mint.com, though you can download other free budgeting tools from any major bank.

Step 4
Next week, review your budget and look for ways to cut back unnecessary expenses. Think about your food and shopping habits and pay attention to the small expenses as they can add up to be quite substantial.

Step 5
Going forward. Before you spend your money on payday, prioritize saving and debt reduction through automatic payments. Sign up for your company's retirement savings plan.

Employers will often contribute free money. If your company doesn't have one, or even if they do and you want to save outside of their plan, sign up for an RRSP and TFSA.

Aim to tuck away 10 to 15 per cent of your salary. If that's too steep, start with less and grow your contributions every six months.

Crush your debt quickly by negotiating the lowest rates with your lenders. Then pay a little extra each month. Even $5 can make a difference.

Step 6
Before Dec. 31, 2012, meet with a qualified financial advisor and develop a plan to achieve your goals.

While building your bottom line, don't put yourself on a financial starvation diet.

You still need to enjoy life and all of its experiences, which often cost money. Take a balanced approach.

Tigers lick wounds after World Series

MLB. Cabrera says club has 'got to feel proud' after being swept

Tigers slugger Miguel Cabrera walks away after striking out to end Game 4 of the World Series against the Giants Sunday night in Detroit. MATT SLOCUM/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Built to win a World Series this year, the Detroit Tigers came close.

Now they head into what could be another busy off-season for one of baseball's most talked-about franchises.

Although Detroit won the American League pennant, a World Series sweep at the hands of the San Francisco Giants leaves a disappointing taste for the Tigers. And it's important to remember that if not for a late-season swoon by the Chicago White Sox, Detroit might not have made the playoffs at all.

"We ended up just not being the main attraction. We got beat by the Giants," manager Jim Leyland said. "They were the main attraction. We got to the heavyweight fight and we got beat."

Leyland was managing on a one-year contract. He and general manager Dave Dombrowski tried to forgo any public discussion of the manager's future until after the season, so that's probably the most immediate issue that needs to be resolved.

If Leyland is back, he'll again preside over a core of talent that can match pretty much any in baseball. Justin Verlander may win his second straight Cy Young Award, and he's backed by right-handers Max Scherzer and Doug Fister, who have become imposing parts of the rotation.

Triple Crown winner Miguel Cabrera is in his prime, and Prince Fielder made a smooth transition to Detroit after signing a $214 million contract in the off-season.

That was the move that signalled to everyone that the Tigers were serious about making a title run right away. It had actually been a quiet start to the off-season before designated hitter Victor Martinez went down with a serious knee injury that would sideline him for the whole 2012 campaign. Then the Tigers acted boldly, signing Fielder.

They didn't cruise to the AL Central title as many expected. Instead, Detroit went 88-74, barely good enough to outlast the White Sox by three games.

But Verlander threw a shutout at Oakland in Game 5 of the division series, and the Tigers swept the New York Yankees in the AL championship series, raising hopes that the team was peaking at exactly the right time.

"We've got to feel proud about what we did this year," Cabrera said. "We went through a lot, down and up."

After Detroit went quietly in the World Series, questions will surface again on what needs to be done to improve.

"We have more experience now. The same team is going to be here — that's a positive — with more," Fielder said. "A lot of great things happened, but unfortunately it closed out with this. You win some and you lose some — and we lost four." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winter Classic to be chopped by Friday: Source

The Winter Classic is next on the chopping block.

Barring unexpected progress in the NHL's labour talks this week, the league's signature Jan. 1 event will follow the 326 regular-season games already wiped from the schedule. The formal cancellation is expected to be made by Friday, according to a source, just ahead of a deadline built into the NHL's contract with the University of Michigan.

The deal struck with the school for the rental of Michigan Stadium last February included a "work stoppage cancellation" clause that allows the NHL to call off the game as late as Friday for a penalty of $100,000 — an amount it has already paid as a deposit.

This year's Winter Classic between the Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings was billed as the biggest in the event's six-year history. THE CANADIAN PRESS
